The Liberated Blacks and the New Free Labor System in the South.—We have all sorts of reports of the confusion, demoralization, idleness and destitution among the whites and blacks of the late rebellious States in consequence of the abolition of slavery. Thus from one quarter we hear that the planters have met and agreed upon a scale of wages for their liberated slaves, and now that they flatly refuse to accept it. In another quarter we are told the planters are dismissing their blacks to go about their business, said planters being utterly disgusted with the astonishing result of the experiment for a bloody Pure slaveholding Confederacy. In one place we are told the bewildered blacks are wandering idly about the country, and the lawless white desperadoes are hunting them down, while in other places the destitute white families of former masters are supplied by the charity of the faithful blacks.

Truly are the unfortunate people of the South of the dominant race draining the bitter cup of rebellion to the very dregs. We are not surprised, however that, with the sudden and astounding collapse of their Southern Confederacy and their cherished institution of slavery, [illegible] would be puzzled to make it out whether they are standing on their heels or their heads. They must have a little time to look about them in order to realize their true situation. There are two fixed facts, however, which we would impress upon all to consider at once. The first applies to the late Southern slaveholders, and it is this—that they have lost their slaves. The second applies to the late slaves of the South, and is simply this—that they have lost their masters and must shift for themselves, no work, no bread. There is still a third proposition which is as true as that the sun rises and sets, viz: that unless whites and blacks shall speedily agree to assist each other in the exchanges of wages and labor there will be much suffering and not a little starvation among both races. The whites, owning lands, factories or vessels, must be willing, on fair terms, to engage their late slaves as free laborers, and the latter must be willing to work for a little where they cannot do better. Nothing but hard work can repair the terrible damages inflicted upon the South by the rebellion; and whites and blacks, from the simple instinct of self-preservation, should at once go to work together, with a generous disposition on both sides, in view of the coming Winter. It is folly to be wrangling about negro equality or inferiority when both races are admonished that they must work or starve.—N. Y. Herald.

Gen. Grant's Losses.—General Grant has reported to the War Department his losses in the campaign against Richmond. They foot up, in killed, wounded and missing, from the battles of the Wilderness to the surrender of Lee, about 90,000. This is not a heavy loss considering the multitude of battles and engagements, generally fought at a disadvantage; yet it is a vast host indeed. Standing four abreast but a yard apart, they would string out to the length of fourteen and one-fifth miles. Of these possibly not over 20,000 were killed.

Can't Get Out.—A Canadian, with American rather than English sentiments, was recently congratulating a crowd that now the rebellion was crushed, Canada would become a State of the Union, when a rebel officer standing by replied "Go slow, my friend, its very easy to get into the Union, but it is h—l to get out."

Kentucky.—John A. Kerson, a member of Congress from the Fifth Congressional District of Iowa, has gone to Kentucky to make several speeches in favor of the amendment to the Constitution of the United States for the abolition of slavery. He went on the invitation of the Union men of Kentucky.

Military Power of the United States.

The [illegible] military operations of the United States for the year 1864 has just been published by the War Department. The document contains a [illegible] of the various arms of the [illegible] in the field during the year for which the report is made. [illegible] of the Department is given in detail. An attentive perusal of this document, or even an examination of its leading features will give the [illegible] of this country an idea of our vast military [illegible] and convince foreign nations that the United States is now justly entitled to take the precedence over all other countries in point of military resources. In no country [illegible] more active than in any other part of the world. Nowhere else are wealth [illegible] increased so fast. The general use of machinery in every branch of industry in which this country is engaged enables us to produce more in proportion to our population than any other people have ever done. As a consequence of this we can release a greater number of men from the ordinary occupations and put them into the field as soldiers than any other power in the world is able to do. In spite of the war the loyal States have increased in wealth and material resources and, with standing the enormous waste of life in the sanguinary campaigns of four years, we find that the number of living men has been considerably augmented. In all history there [illegible] parallel instance where a nation has grown stronger and richer during so great a war.

By the Provost Marshal General's report it appears that on the first of November the national forces not called out amounted to 2 734 220 men. These figures, of course, include only the number of men actually enrolled. But a few thousand of these names were those of persons in the rebellious States. In a conflict with a combination of foreign powers, should they ever undertake to meet us in the field—a thing we need not fear they will ever do—we could now draw [illegible] oppose them from a much larger number of men than those lately enrolled. Now that we are at peace with ourselves we shall, no doubt, remain at peace with all mankind, since no nation will have the hardihood to attack a people who are known to be able to put forth a martial effort as great as that lately witnessed in this country.

The total number of troops recruited and mustered into army service for one, two or three years between November 1st, 1863, and the corresponding date of 1864 was 650,759. In the navy and marine corps for the same space of time there were enlisted 24 683 men. Of those who went into the army that year 538,945 were new troops. Yet behind all these forces were more than two millions and a half of men to supply, as circumstances might require, the places of those who should be disabled, or those whose term of service should expire. Notwithstanding all the expense incident to raising, maintaining and paying the soldiers whom we had in the field there was no diminution of the resources of the country, no crash of business, no collapse of credit—nothing to outward appearance, to indicate the magnitude of the contest then going on.

In point of numbers these armies were among the largest of which history makes mention. In actual force, in positive efficiency no others have ever existed which could be fairly compared with them. Though the population of Rome at the commencement of its decline was, according to [illegible], fully 120,000,000, its army was not more than half so large as ours was, when the conflict in the country was at its height. Darius met Alexander at Arbela with one million of men. Xerxes, if we may believe Herodotus, led two millions [illegible] Asia across the Hellespont, but these forces were mere undisciplined multitudes which do not deserve to be called armies. Napoleon at one time had 800,000 men under arms but these were drawn from almost the whole of Europe, the various States of which furnished their several contingents as he their master, required them to do. These troops occupied the whole continent from the banks of the Tagus to those of the Niemen, and as before stated, are not to be [illegible] as having been an army which was formed from a single people. We may therefore safely say that our army was the largest which was ever put in the field by any civilized nation. Nor was it great in numbers alone. It was powerful in the intelligence and patriotism of the men who composed it. Strong as it was numerically, it was stronger still in moral power. It was formed of men who possessed not only the qualities of mere physical bravery, but also the characteristics which mark the difference between those who keep before them an intelligent view of the high destiny of man, and others who have not [illegible] to think of the great purpose he was ordained to fulfill. Our Government has not been saved by men who fought, as others have done, over disputed successions and the nominal rights of kings, but it has been rescued by freemen who with a capacity to understand the ends for which governments are instituted, perceived the necessity of preserving our system as a heritage for generations to come. It used to be our boast that our Government was indestructible and imperishable; surely we venture nothing now when we say that it is [illegible] to survive all the anti republican dynasties now in existence. The late civil war has shown the incomparableness of our system, the [illegible] of our resources, the valor and [illegible] of our soldiers, the determination and endurance of our people. The United States not only stands among the greatest of the nations but at the head of them all. Hereafter its people will not be known merely as a thrifty enterprising and ingenious race, but history will speak of their military record as one of the proudest which belongs to any nation under heaven.

THE BROTHER JONATHAN.—We publish this morning a telegram received late last evening from [illegible], Oregon, to the effect that the steamer Brother Jonathan with nearly all on board was lost near Crescent City on Sunday last. From the tenor of the dispatch we have every reason [illegible] that the announcement is true. Gen. Wright and staff were on board and [illegible] Lincoln wishing [illegible] notify [illegible] San Francisco of calamity sent a [illegible] with a dispatch, a brief report of which has also been sent us here.

As to cause of this appalling calamity we can only give our own conjecture. Various [illegible] suggest themselves but the most probable [illegible] that the steamer [illegible] with the [illegible] on her last downward trip, was of a more serious character than had been supposed [illegible] started back without sufficient repairs [illegible] suddenly by reason of the damages [illegible] in the manner spoken of. Or it is possible [illegible] she may have run upon some hidden rock off Crescent City and in this way been lost. But whatever may be conjectured about the cause the calamity [illegible] comes too direct to [illegible] to doubt its occurrence. We do not know who of our citizens may have been on board the ill starred vessel but certain it is that this terrible disaster will carry mourning into many homes here and elsewhere. Only fifteen persons of two or three hundred are known to be saved. The dispatch which we print this morning [illegible] know of the great calamity. There are [illegible] particulars concerning [illegible] the city. We [illegible] to-day. We shall try to get the [illegible] from San Francisco [illegible] the particulars of the disaster at the earliest possible moment. We hope to [illegible]

The Quartz of Santiam.

QUARTZVILLE, July 26 1865.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

The mines at Santiam have for two or three years past, been somewhat noted. I will now attempt to describe where they are and as far as my observation goes what they are and what it may be expected from them.

This mining region is situated in the Cascade range in a south east direction from Salem and is distant by road about seventy miles. From that city a stage runs twice a week as far as the foot of the mountain to a place which the miners call Marysville and it is at this point that the first signs of a mining camp begin to appear. Mr. Avery has established a store for the supply of miners and others. There is also a hotel where well prepared meals can be obtained. At this place the mountain sets in and a considerable portion of the journey of twenty two miles to Santiam is performed over a road which is being extended to the Des Chutes. I could not help observing that in many places the engineering ability displayed in making the road was not of a very high order although the grading was of a solid character. With patience toil and many inward mutterings Quartzville the city of the district is at last reached. Here three or four hotels have made their appearance but the elements of respiration can be obtained at present at one place only in the shape of brandy, whisky, &c. at a slight advance over Salem prices. Several [illegible] houses are building and others are in course of erection and there is altogether a bustle which tells you that the inhabitants have some sort of conviction that Quartzville is really going to be a city.

QUARTZ MINING.

It is in [illegible] this [illegible] that this district [illegible] and even in this respect many perhaps will feel disappointed when I say that [illegible] what has been done comes under the term prospecting. Rich specimens of gold bearing quartz have long been exhibited both at Salem and Portland, but let no one suppose that such quartz is to be picked up anywhere. They must be taken only as evidences of a different veins existing in this district.

THE UNION COMPANY

Was the first established here, and have run three or four tunnels into the mountain. They have now ready to be crushed about four hundred tons of quartz. They have expended considerable sums of money and some of it to no purpose. I saw one tunnel forty six feet in length and I was at a loss to conceive why it was made. A miner would as soon think of tunnelling your public square. They have run one very good tunnel one hundred and sixty one feet in length on the north side of Gold Mountain and two others on the same side of shorter length, from all of which they have taken out likely looking quartz in quantity as above stated. What this will average per ton it is impossible for any one to say. I think the company ought not to rest satisfied with testing the amount they have on hand as it is too small to be of any value as a test of the paying quality of their lode. It is easy enough to obtain a good prospect from the loose abraded material in and about their tunnels.

In the tunnels I observed several seams of quartz varying from a few inches to several feet in thickness. They bear in a general south east and west north west with a very slight dip. They are encased in [illegible] with a very hard [illegible] or trap rock. [illegible] but no slate, except here and there a [illegible] It would [illegible] to enter into further detail. This company possess a good miner in Mr. James [illegible] as superintendent.

Blasting is going on in the mountains around but I have had [illegible] In describing the Union Company I presume I have described many of the [illegible] powers of testing the quartz [illegible] A quartz mill is in [illegible] superintendence of Mr. Henry Taylor of Portland and when this is [illegible] sometimes owing to the state of [illegible] bearing qualities of them [illegible] result. I have no [illegible] if quartz in sufficient quantities [illegible]

With regard to placer digging I have but little to say. This district [illegible] mountains and valleys. The [illegible] the results of the [illegible] of strata [illegible] Quartzville [illegible] three hundred yards [illegible]

The Tax on Bullion Assays.—The following statement, assayed in the District of Oregon from the 30th August, 1864, to the 30th of June, 1865, [illegible] to us by Thos. Frazer, Esq., United States Revenue Assessor for the District.

[illegible]

In addition to the above there has been assessed at the office of Tracy & Co. the following amounts on con[illegible] ations of gold bars, received from country assay offices and elsewhere, reassayed, the tax on which had been previously paid, and was not subject to assessment.

OTHER PARTS OF THE DISTRICT.

C. B. Miller, Dalles City	$186,091 10
Sum total	$[illegible]

The above is given, as will be seen, at currency rates, taking as a basis the average rate of currency for the time at 60 cents, and we have a total valuation in coin of the bullion assays for the period mentioned, $2,[illegible] 61 22, which is a very fair showing. In addition to this we can offer no more conclusive proof that advantages to be gained by the establishment of a Branch Mint at this city, than a comparison of the tax paid on assays at Portland, and the Dalles. The place selected by the most wise and holy council at Washington city, pays a tax on $120,[illegible] 10, bullion assays, in ten months, and supports one office, while here we have three assay offices, paying a tax in the same time, on $1,325,091 59. It is last simple [illegible] that the matter should be made right—that a few [illegible] individuals holding the power and acting for their own personal regard, should set themselves up against the interests of the community at large, and in defiance of the expressed wish of the Legislative Assembly at the [illegible] twice in succession memorializing them, on this most important question, is perfectly absurd, and we hope to yet see Congress reconsider the [illegible] "speculation [illegible] voted the Branch Mint to Dalles City" and act more wisely on the subject.

Trade to Idaho.—The Sacramento Union says: "California is fast taking the Idaho trade from the Oregonians. Over one hundred tons of freight is now at the Chico [illegible] waiting for teams." To which the Umatilla Advertiser adds: "And will stand a chance to wait some time longer, and then have to be sent by the Columbia River if the owners of the freight expect to realize any profit from it this season. A hundred tons! We send that amount every two days from Umatilla, and the freight does not wait for teams. Over ninety tons of machinery, &c., belonging to one company, packed at our [illegible], and is traveling to Ruby City, and the whole transaction of [illegible] the teams and getting them started on the road transpired inside of three days; the contract for hauling was made within six hours after the agent for the company in charge of the machinery called for teams. Another little quartz crusher of 25 stamps, weighing as many tons as the freight at Chico landing, is expected here to-day, and will start immediately on its way to Idaho."

The State Fair.—We have been presented with a double sheet colored poster, printed at the Oregon Farmer Book and Job Office, in this city, also with the pamphlet premium list, and programme for the annual exhibition of the [illegible] State Agricultural Society, to be held in October next. We are indebted to our good friend E. M. Waite, Esq., for these favors. The programme has been prepared with great care by the President and Society, and it is the [illegible] of the Board of Managers to see it carried out without variation. From the efforts being made by the Society this year, and the encouraging words we hear in its favor from all quarters, we are satisfied the State Fair of 1865 will prove successful in all its departments. The poster is a beautiful specimen of printing, [illegible] in five colors, all rich and tastefully arranged. The posters, programmes, and premium lists will be forwarded to all the post offices in the State, the present week.

Drowned.—We are informed by Mr. H. C. Victor that William Adair, a deck hand on the steamer Cayuse, was [illegible] from that boat yesterday morning at 7 o'clock, [illegible] on her down trip, one and a half miles below Dayton. He was making ready a rope with which the steamer was about to remove a snag when he lost his balance and fell overboard from the bow. He did not rise again [illegible] a good swimmer, and it is supposed went under the boat. Capt. Miller made every effort to save the man, [illegible] an hour returned to Dayton and hired a party to continue the search for the body. [illegible] was a native of Larne, Ireland, and was 20 years of age.

Sudden Death.—The friends of Mr. Charles Cook, and [illegible], who left this city but a short time since, will [illegible] to learn of the sudden death of each at San Francisco [illegible] of the heart. Mr. Cook died a few days after his arrival in San Francisco, and yesterday we learned by private letter that Mrs. Cook died a few days after the death of her husband. As the representative [illegible] of the firm of Marden & Folger, Mr. Cook had formed many acquaintances, and the deaths will be deeply [illegible] by a large number of our citizens.

[illegible]—Marshal Hoyt was called upon [illegible] the rather unpleasant prerogative of [illegible] by locking up a desperate woman. She had [illegible] a muss at the Union Hotel, and visited the [illegible], and smashed out the glass in a window front, [illegible] visited a saloon on Front street where she was taken [illegible] at the corner of Washington and Front [illegible] to walk any further, and was taken [illegible] cursings and ravings of the worst character, in an [illegible] wagon, to the city jail. It was a pitiful sight, [illegible] attracted a large crowd of spectators.

A Foundling.—On Monday evening last, as Mr. C. P. [illegible] was about retiring for the night, a call was heard at his house, and he answered it by opening the door, finding to his astonishment, a basket containing an infant [illegible] A man and woman was seen some distance from the house but they were not identified, and it is not known who it was that left the little innocent at the place designated [illegible] It was well [illegible] and provided with all the fixtures [illegible] pretty girl baby, and has fallen into good hands.

From Astoria.—The steamer John H. Couch, under the [illegible] of Capt. Holman, is becoming a favorite with our citizens for visiting the "Beach." On her arrival [illegible] quite a delegation returned from the sea [illegible] feeling very much improved by a short absence from the dust, brick, and mortar of the metropolis. The Hubbard was left at Astoria yesterday morning. There were no vessels in the river bound up—the bark [illegible] is not yet ready for sea.

Mr. Pearne's Lecture.—The lecture by Rev. Thomas H. Pearne, at the Presbyterian Church last evening was [illegible] The subject [illegible] to defer [illegible] this time, [illegible] to be able to refer to it [illegible] with the [illegible] than we could [illegible] of this writing.

Late Papers, Periodicals, etc.—Charles Barrett has [illegible] periodicals for July, Mrs. Demorest's Mirror [illegible] Leslie's Lady's Magazine, The Federal [illegible] Monthly (new); and Hours at Home. For August [illegible] Lady's Book, and Littell's Living Age for June. New York, Boston and Philadelphia weekly and illustrated journals, of which he has sent us an abundant supply.

Police Court.—In Recorder's Court yesterday Charles Schaefer and a man named Charles Derbaum were fined [illegible] and [illegible] respectively, with costs added, which they paid, for fighting. [illegible]

Commencement [illegible] Workmen were engaged yesterday in making the surface excavations at the corner of Pine and Front streets, [illegible] the down of the Nicholson Pavement. The work will be thoroughly inaugurated by the last of the week, and will extend from that point to the center of [illegible]

The Cascade.—The new steamer Cascade has been running one week, and after the very best satisfaction. She is well liked by the officers and men on board, and may well be considered with pride by the company. During the week she has carried over [illegible] tons of freight [illegible] Cascades from this city.

Brick Work Completed.—The brick work on the new buildings of Messrs. Cohn & Co., and Captain J. C. Ainsworth, on Front street above Pine, was completed yesterday. The buildings will soon be ready for the reception of their occupants.

Apricots.—Gov. T. Myers has the finest of fruits growing in his garden, and they are now ripe. We acknowledge a sample. The [illegible] are [illegible]

Sudden Rescue.—The weather was very warm and [illegible] found at all, was in the Willamette river, all [illegible] of the Sanborn [illegible] Portland [illegible] several [illegible] yesterday.

The Pirate

From the San Francisco [illegible] we take the following information about the pirate Shenandoah:

[illegible]

During his stay on board the Shenandoah, Mr. Dalton, the mate of the Hopper, became quite intimate with several of the officers and men, and in conversation he learned that the Shenandoah was [illegible] to the Englishman [illegible] in Melbourne [illegible] that this was the vessel [illegible] ship on her way [illegible] from Melbourne.

[illegible]

The [illegible] captured by the pirate were generally well treated while on board the Shenandoah. That is to say, they were not put in irons, [illegible] but all their money was taken from them, and also [illegible] they were told that they could keep their clothing [illegible] and found that it had all been overhauled by the pirates and everything of value taken. We subjoin the following statements which [illegible] such further details of interest to the public [illegible] gathered from the [illegible] on the Milo.

STATEMENT OF CAPTAIN HAWES OF THE SHIP [illegible]

On the 22d of June [illegible] Capt. Thatcher observed a large ship, which he at first took for a whaleship [illegible] coming up with her, [illegible] to be a steamer. Upon coming within speaking distance her character was apparent, and [illegible] the place [illegible] that she was [illegible] pirate. [illegible] quarter deck of the ship, and called out in a sharp peremptory manner:

"Ship ahoy! [illegible] bring your papers!"

Captain Hawes—"What ship is this?"

Answer—"Never mind. Come aboard and bring your papers, and bear a hand about it too."

Upon that Captain went on board of the Shenandoah, and was received at the gangway by a Lieutenant, who escorted him into the cabin and to the presence of Captain Waddell, who motioned him to a seat, when the following colloquy ensued:

Captain Waddell—"Captain, I have [illegible] you [illegible] board [illegible] I propose to [illegible] truth."

An oath to tell, answer such questions as might be propounded was then administered.

Capt. Waddell—"What is the value of your ship?"

Capt. Hawes—"[illegible]"

Capt. W.—"What quantity of oil and bone have you on board?"

Capt. H.—"One hundred and fifty barrels of oil and [illegible] pounds of bone."

Capt. W.—"How many pounds sterling is your oil worth?"

Capt. H.—"I am not accustomed to reckon sterling money. It's worth [illegible] per gallon."

Capt. W.—"And your bone?"

Capt. H.—"Two dollars per pound."

Capt. W.—"That makes it all $[illegible]."

Capt. H.—"No, taking into consideration the wear and tear of the vessel, it cannot be worth over $20,000 in all."

Capt. Waddell drew up a bond for $40,000, payable upon the acknowledgment of the Independence of the Confederate States of America, and compelled Capt. Hawes to sign it, on pain of having his ship ransacked and burned. The bond having been signed and delivered: "Now," said the pirate, "I shall put on board your ship 90 paroled prisoners of war."

Capt. Hawes remonstrated, as he had not the necessary provisions and water to take so large a number.

Capt. Waddell replied that he didn't care; "You had better send your boats for the prisoners as quick as you can, as I shall detain your clearance until it is done." "Come! come!" said he impatiently, "Bear a hand about it, as I have other work to do."

While Capt. Hawes was complying with the demands of the pirate, the Sophia Thornton was captured. The Milo had then on board the crews of the William Thompson, Euphrates and Jireh. A prize crew was then put on board the Sophia Thornton, and the Shenandoah made after the Jireh Swift, which was also captured and burned. The pirate then returned and spoke the Milo, asking Capt. Hawes, very politely, if he would be kind enough to come on board. Upon going into the cabin Capt. Waddell informed him that Capt. Williams of the Jireh Swift wished to see him to engage passage for San Francisco. The same objection regarding want of provisions and water was made as previously. Capt. Waddell then said "If you want provisions you must take them from the Sophia Thornton, and you must take her crew also," which order was obeyed. Upon leaving the Shenandoah his ship's papers were returned to him with the exception of the register, for which a receipt was given.

While conversing in the Shenandoah's cabin, Capt. Waddell remarked, "This is a deplorable war."

"Yes, replied Capt. Hawes, and no one deplores it more than I do."

Capt. Waddell continued: "I suppose, of course, you look upon this matter as the fortune of war, and understand that I have no personal feeling!"

Capt. Hawes made no reply.

The Shenandoah.—U. S. Consul Francis and Judge Lander, of Washington Territory, waited on His Excellency Governor Kennedy, day before yesterday, to request that one of Her Majesty's vessels on this station should be sent to notify the rebel cruiser Shenandoah that peace had been declared, and to put a stop to her depredations. His Excellency replied that he feared he could do nothing in the matter; besides the notification to be legal, would require to come from an official source.—Vic. Colonist, July 26th.

American Belles.—America is justly proud of her beautiful ladies, but how many mar their beauty, and lose their health and youth, become prematurely old in appearance, by neglecting to take proper care of their teeth. There can be no excuse for this, as Sozodont, pronounced by all worthy a place between the sweetest lips, can now be had in all civilized countries.

Sold by Druggists and Perfumers.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

—OF—

HAS BEEN USED FOR NEARLY

HALF A CENTURY,

WITH THE MOST ASTONISHING SUCCESS IN CURING

Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Croup, Liver Complaint, Bronchitis, Difficulty of Breathing, Asthma, and every affection of the

THROAT, LUNGS, AND CHEST,

Including EVEN

CONSUMPTION.

There is scarcely one individual in the community who wholly escapes, during a season, from some one, however slightly developed, of the above symptoms—a neglect of which might lead to the last named, and most to be dreaded disease in the whole catalogue. The power of "medicinal gum" of the Wild Cherry Tree over this class of complaints is well known; so great is the good it has performed, and so great the popularity it has acquired.

In this preparation, besides the virtues of the Cherry, there are commingled with it other ingredients of like value, thus increasing its value ten fold, and forming a Remedy whose power to soothe, to heal, to relieve, and to cure disease, exists in no other medicine yet discovered.

The unequalled success that has attended the application of this medicine in all cases of

has induced many physicians of high standing to employ it in their practice, some of whom advise us of the fact under their own signatures. We have space only for the names of a few of these—

The proprietors have letters from all classes of our fellow citizens, from the halls of Congress, to the humblest cottage, and even from beyond the seas; for the fame and virtue of WISTAR'S BALSAM have extended to the uttermost bounds of the earth, without any attempt on our part to introduce it beyond the limits of our own country.

TO CALIFORNIANS AND OREGONIANS.

After October 1, 1863, all genuine WISTAR'S BALSAM of WILD CHERRY for the Pacific Coast will be enclosed in a new wrapper which will bear the printed names of both SETH W. FOWLE & Co., Boston, Mass., and JOHN D. PARK, Cincinnati, Ohio, as well as fac-simile of the signatures of "I. Butts," "Edmonds & Park," and "H. Wistar, M. D."

The Twentieth Army Corps—Its Campaigns.

(Correspondence of the New York Times.)

Bladensburg, Md., June 2, 1865.—We are having a spell of weather [illegible] hot spell, if we are to judge by the dust and sweat and glare perceptible everywhere in the streets of Washington. But out here in the camp, on the sightly hilltops in the shady groves and the sweet orchards bordered by luxuriant hedges, the dust and heat are not annoying. The heat is not oppressive and the [illegible] breeze brings not a grain [illegible] of permeating dust so destructive to clean linen and even tempers. For all around without, just within and without the main [illegible] of the city's fortifications, are scattered—[illegible] to the unpracticed eye—the vast encampments of the Twentieth Army Corps—the corps which next to the Ninth, has traveled further and seen more varied experience than any other in the army. It is the old corps whose insignia has always been the star—handed down from the Twelfth, which bequeathed to the Twentieth its two most sterling divisions. This gallant corps should thank that General, who, in the fertility of his systematic detail and organization, assigned it to such a beautiful and significant emblem—an emblem which it was an honor to follow and respect, and which has been followed and respected with a devotion and reverence whose best example, it is not sacrilege to say, is found in the "wise men of the East." And it is just to remark, en passant, that the brain which gave to the army its present beautiful insignia did it a most valued service. It was this, perhaps more than anything else which brought the Army of the Potomac out of the "slough of despond," physical and moral, which engulfed it after the carnage of Fredericksburg, December, 1862, and the "mud campaign" of January, 1863. And ever since the esprit de corps of the army has been largely aided by the generous pride with which each organization has ever defended and fought for its badge. And now that the army is disbanding, the associations gather afresh, and the badges are perpetuated in medals, and seals and signs, and will thus go down to posterity heir-looms in American families, becoming priceless with age and gathering lustre anew as each succeeding generation recounts the exploits of the present.

Apropos of Fredericksburg. It was just when Burnside decided to recross the river that an Aid brought the word that Siegel and Slocum with the Eleventh and Twelfth Corps, were at Stafford Court house, where they were halted and where they subsequently made their Winter quarters. 'Twas well that the roads were bad, else the gory field of Fredericksburg had been redder still with useless blood, and the Twentieth Army Corps of to-day less by many scores of brave and true men. Banks had led the old Twelfth many a vain march up and down the Valley of Virginia, until at Slaughter Mountain, the time when Pope made his headquarters so conspicuously "in the saddle," the gallant little army was almost crushed by the terrible odds hurled against them. Geary and Prince and Augur and a score of other leaders, were killed or captured. But back it came, over the well beaten ground of Fairfax and Fauquier, and after the second Bull Run, and reorganization and reinforcement, the corps followed McClellan to South Mountain and Antietam, where it again sealed its devotion with its blood, and where the white haired, patriarchal Mansfield fell. The changes which followed put Slocum, then of the Second Division, of the Sixth Corps, in command. Brave and modest and faithful, he led the starry host through the Chancellorsville campaign, where it did signal service. While encamped at Stafford Court-house, the old Eleventh Corps underwent serious changes. Sigel was relieved and [illegible] by Howard; in the divisions Stahl went by the board, and was assigned to the cavalry in front of Washington. Devins succeeded him, and has fulfilled well his promise to this day in other commands. The orator Schurz and Von Steinwehr had command of the other two divisions, and the insignia of the corps was the crescent. This corps subsequently became a constituent part of the Twelfth, which, wisely, chose the star of the Twelfth. It may be unjust, but I have an antipathy for the crescent. Its significance always [illegible] to be lacking, and I am glad the badge is [illegible]. Perhaps my prejudice is owing to a [illegible] which is as vivid as yesterday. It was Chancellorsville, Saturday afternoon, May 2d, 1863, sun about an hour high, the atmosphere had grown murky with battle-smoke, though no great battle had been fought; rattling musketry and crashing artillery had burst forth at fitful intervals along the line during the day, but the chief interest centered in the column of troops and wagons which could be seen passing our front to the right a mile or more in advance of our skirmishers. Sickles had been called from the reserve, and ordered to send in Birney and Whipple to move straight out by the flank, deploy, attack the enemy's column, and pierce it if possible. Williams, of the Twelfth Corps, supported this movement by moving out on the left in line of battle, and Geary co-operated by advancing his line. This division had quite an engagement on the left of the plank road; Williams only skirmished [illegible]; Sickles [illegible] out, surprised the enemy, struck the column on the flank, cut it in two, and [illegible] doubling it back on the enemy's right. Prisoners began to come in by regiments, and with a large squad of these I started back to headquarters to report the gratifying success. We had almost reached the plank road, when a few rattling picket shots were heard on the extreme right; then a volley, which came through the dense woods with a muffled sound in the thick air; then a score of volleys, a great crash, and the deep reverberation of a gun or two. The fact was [illegible] "That infernal [illegible], Stonewall Jackson, is on our right flank, in spite of all that Sickles has done," exclaimed Captain Alexander M[illegible], of Hooker's staff. "[illegible] there," said I, with misgivings, as we dashed through the thicket which separated us from the main road. We [illegible] to the left, and [illegible] down the road, in the direction of the firing. As we galloped up out of that famous persimmon valley, a sight met our eyes that engendered a prejudice against the crescent which has never been effaced. We saw at once that the right was shattered; the sun was just sinking with a dull, reddish glare, behind the forest trees; the air was heavy and full of smoke, which [illegible] near the earth; from the road rose clouds of [illegible], and down from the right rushed a fearfully panic-stricken [illegible] disorder [illegible] of men, wagons and animals; the demoralization was complete [illegible] every thing they [illegible] [illegible] half a dozen army wagons, a batch of [illegible], half [illegible], with glue [illegible] at the sight [illegible]; a caisson or two; then more [illegible] men, dust and confusion, the night being [illegible] by the nearer and [illegible] of musketry, which was now pouring forth [illegible]. The first [illegible] to rally the men on the spot; sabres and pistols were drawn, horses were spurred into the crowd; Dahlgren, Moore, Chandler, Dickinson and Russell, the gallant personal staff of the Commanding General, were all on the ground, but the panic was too great. Stimulated by the efforts of my companions, I drew a small revolver and threateningly pointed it at a fleeing soldier; he responded by jabbing his bayonet at my horse, and with a strong Teutonic imprecation [illegible].

The [illegible] was now appalling. Nearer came the infernal yell of the rebels, strong and clear above the din of battle; strong nerves began to grow weak; disaster seemed inevitable. But just in time came Pleasanton dashing down the road at the head of the reserve cavalry brigade, which quickly deployed in line of battle, and began to [illegible] up the host that still rushed and crowded on. This restored comparative order, but it was soon evident that cavalry and demoralized infantry were no match for the defiant enemy now in plain sight and rapidly advancing. Almost [illegible] at the issue, we looked around and through the clouds of dust, moving on the double quick, we could distinguish a column of our infantry and hear a sturdy inspiriting cheer. "That's Berry! Glory to God!" shouted Captain Moore, "now we'll fix 'em." Berry did fix 'em, though the gallant hero fell next day, in the same persimmon valley where he on that gloomy night deprived the rebel cause of their most dashing and vigorous leader. Stonewall Jackson received one bullet from Berry's men, and two from his own while audaciously reconnoitering between the skirmish lines, in the dusky twilight, being mistaken by his own skirmishers for our cavalry, who fired upon him in pursuance of his own orders, given as he passed out to fire upon anything coming down the road.

This was the disgrace of the crescent. It has been most nobly wiped out in the glory of the star, and with the emblem has vanished the memory of that most disastrous hour. I do not revive it here to wound feelings or renew subdued bitterness, but to remind the public by contrast that the panic stricken men of that hour have become among the most gallant soldiers of the nation, deserving equal honor with any others, and giving to the cause as brave officers and as patriotic blood as any command in the service. The crescent is a thing of the past, and so may my prejudices become.

Three months after Gettysburg—victory—and a week after Chickamauga—defeat, the crescent and star were ordered to the Western field detached under Hooker, and arrived in Southern Tennessee just in time to check the depredations of Wheeler's cavalry on the lines of communication south of Nashville, while Rosecrans gathered his army in the defenses of Chattanooga. The advance across the Tennessee, the raising of the [illegible] point [illegible] siege [illegible] of Chattanooga [illegible] the [illegible] engagement in Wauhatchie Valley [illegible], and the star [illegible] crescent [illegible] command of Hooker and Howard and Williams [illegible] their [illegible] side by side with the veterans of the West. [illegible] Lookout Mountain came next, when the battle [illegible] Williams and Geary accidentally strengthened [illegible] Osterhaus stormed the rugged battlements of the strongest natural position of the war [illegible] which [illegible] drove him [illegible] valley [illegible] the last [illegible] at Ringgold, where Geary's gallant [illegible] and a score of other brave officers.

The winter of 1863-4 in the Lookout Valley witnessed [illegible] agreeable winter encampments of the war. The enemy had been too severely punished to be troublesome; the [illegible] were [illegible] the great work of 1864 was in progress. The artist Walker spent several weeks in the camp and made a study of the famous battle now [illegible] the clouds, which must reflect [illegible] be assuming its [illegible] upon canvas. Slocum was sent to Vicksburg before Lookout Mountain was fought. Howard helped Sherman at Missionary Ridge, and afterward took the Fourth Corps, which was a consolidation of the old Nineteenth and Twentieth under Crittenden and McCook. I remember the order which effected the consolidation of the star and the crescent. It was not kindly worded. The Lieutenant General ordered General Sherman to consolidate the commands [illegible] and break up the [illegible] of one General commanding two corps. [illegible] was the sternest feature of Hooker's character, and there was no [illegible] at Resaca and Peachtree creek. It was plain fighting, and the list of casualties from Chattanooga to Atlanta shows that the [illegible] Twentieth Corps was truly baptized in blood.

Peachtree creek [illegible] history is very [illegible] fully and truthfully written the country will never know how narrow an escape [illegible] Sherman's escape from disaster [illegible] at the gates of Atlanta. The reckless Hood had hardly assumed command [illegible] he precipitated his army almost [illegible] upon that portion of the line where [illegible] though was surest ruin to us. Our lines were not connected. Palmer was not [illegible] the right [illegible] Howard on the left. The army had been straightening itself out after the passage of the Chattahoochee, and was moving around on the north and east of Atlanta. [illegible] this line was Hood's intention, but he struck in the wrong place. The "White Star Division" received the onset. Williams and Ward came to the rescue, and five hours of desperate, sanguinary fighting followed. The enemy came on in deep charging masses through which our artillery tore great chasms, which were again filled [illegible] the little [illegible] stream ran blood. The carnage among the enemy was awful; our line was cool and steady; charge after charge was repulsed and not an inch of ground was lost. The battle was fought and won by the Twentieth Corps alone, with one brigade in reserve. Hooker said it was the most satisfactory fight of his experience, and it was his last. It was unfortunate for both himself and the country that his sword should have been afterward sheathed.

As we lay at length upon the grass this afternoon, with the quiet of genuine peace all around us, it is among the pleasantest things in the world to revive old memories. My companion is a Brigadier General, through whom I can literally see daylight—a shot hole through the body, a legacy of the Peninsular campaign, which has not healed near as fast as my friend has been promoted. The veteran soldiers on every hand are the pleasantest sight to my eyes. The paraphernalia of war is not now suggestive of death and gloom, for joyful faces beam everywhere. The soldier is going home, and you, people at home, if you do not take off your hat for every worthy boy in blue, you don't deserve the country they have saved for you.

The Negro in Georgia.—The following interesting article is from the Macon, Georgia Telegraph. It shows what the feeling is in the South relative to the abolition of slavery. All the representative men of that section are disposed to give slavery up, and it is only the thoughtless and ignorant who propose to try to re-establish it:

The programme of the Telegraph under reconstituted Federal authority is very plain and simple. It is to accept whatever is inevitable, and make the best of it. "Show us what we have got to do and we will do it to the best of our ability, and with what grace and heartiness we may." If there is any other course consistent with interest, wisdom and duty, we fail to discover it. Nevertheless there seems to be, upon the part of some few of our readers, an indisposition or inability to comprehend even so plain a thing as the attitude we occupy. They address us with arguments and complaints, particularly about what we have written on the subject of negro emancipation, as if they held us responsible for a fact, the existence of which we only recognize. In the name of justice, Mr. Caviller, what have we to do with the practical fact of the abolition of slavery in Georgia and elsewhere? Did we decree it? Did we ask for or order it? Does our judgment approve of it as a piece of abstract policy? Not a whit more than yours. As a matter of opinion we hold it an ill advised policy, both as to the negro, his master, and the substantial interest of the country at large. Why then reproach us, and argue the case as though we were in favor of impoverishing this or that class, or destroying this or that interest? We are in favor of no such thing. We may recognize the troubles, losses and vexations which will grow out of this business just as fully as you do, and the only difference between us is that you propose to mope and groan over them, while we are in favor of bestirring ourselves to devise and apply all the mitigating and remedial agencies the case admits of. You give us long homilies about the constitutional impossibility of immediate emancipation, and in so doing are simply trying to practice a delusion upon yourselves, which we are unwilling to try upon the public. We tell you slavery is already gone, Constitution or no Constitution. The death sentence has already been pronounced, and final execution is only a question of a few days or hours, while under such circumstances, we hold a respite as undesirable.

To look at the question in its private as well as public aspect, how are you, Mr. Planter, to prosecute your labor with freedmen instead of slaves—maintain discipline and efficiency, neighborhood order and security, suppress vagrancy around you, protect property, secure the comfort and well being of your laborers, and enforce justice and order among themselves? Now these are the great questions we should be thinking and talking over, and depend upon it we have got to solve them ourselves, and upon their solution hangs the question of beggary or comfort, prosperity or ruin for the State of Georgia, and for yourselves and ourselves. Talk about "Yankees." It is time we were all Yankees, if by the term is meant shrewd, energetic and suitable encounter with difficulties. Tell us about being "Abolitionists!" We are all Abolitionists by force of events—by the stern logic of war.

Owyhee.—A correspondent of the San Francisco Bulletin, writing from Owyhee, says of the wealth of that region:

My belief is that Owyhee is the richest quartz region now known. I think capital can find great opportunities to invest here, and I am personally interested in the success of the country. Some friends of mine have gone East to sell quartz—men worthy of confidence and honest intention—but I am told of men who have gone to dispose of worthless interests that are merely taken up for speculation, grounded in some places with no shadow of title. Some also say that rich rock from prominent ledges has been taked to represent worthless ones. There are men whose character is sufficient to command respect and insure fair dealing, and those I am really aiding when I demand that capitalists come here or send an agent to receive the ledge and accept it as filling the description in most cases. There are many prominent ledges that have a reputation well established, and some men have them for sale who are worthy of credit. I don't happen to be bagged with any dealers in fancy stock, and I merely intend to warn the world that the old game of quartz mining [illegible] is to be represented in Owyhee. I know [illegible] who have sent [illegible] to different cities East, priced at hundreds of thousands of dollars, which they were foolish enough to expect [illegible] just because the name of Owyhee is now so popular. [illegible] and that the mines of Owyhee should be appreciated for their real worth. Owyhee is all I have ever claimed for it, and though its development must necessarily be gradual, still it seems sure and certain. Many ledges are proved rich and valuable, and it only needs the [illegible] expenditure of capital to insure that this country will stand among the first mining regions ever known.

Beckley, the notorious founder of the Order of the Knights of the Golden Circle, who has been in Fort Lafayette and Fort Warren a good while, is trying to get discharged. When he was captured in New Albany, his private journal was found, in which he proudly congratulated himself that he had "inaugurated the greatest war of modern times!" We guess that his present quarters are quite good enough for him.

Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION. IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. Messrs. Tilton & McFarland,

Gentlemen: From representations made by Mr. Lillie, I was induced to purchase of him one of his

So Called "Fire Proof Safes."

On the 18th of February last, a fire occurred in our block which destroyed a number of buildings, and our own with the rest. We trusted our books, papers and all in the safe. After the fire the so-called "safe" was taken from the ruins and on opening it we found that Everything had been Destroyed.

We send you the safe, with what is left of the papers, and you will see that not one of them is legible, or a thing enough to sustain its own weight. Having the curiosity to know how our neighbors fared in this fire, we noticed McKenzie & Hardy just opening their safe (TILTON & McFARLAND'S make) and its contents were found to be

In Perfect Condition.

This led us to further investigation, and we found to our astonishment that from the large amount of combustible material in Messrs. McK. & H.'s cellars, such as lard, pork, etc., their safe was subjected to a much greater heat than that of our own. We being in the cloth line, business and had but little in the cellar. There was another of Lillie's safes here subjected to the same [illegible] being, however, no better than ours.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servants,
(Signed) GEO. L. CHESBORO & CO.

NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES!

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,

617 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhoea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned to this State, after an absence of one year, during which time he has visited all the principal hospitals of Europe, among them those of Dublin, London and Paris. The following celebrated hospitals of London are among those visited by the Doctor: Guy's, High street, Borough; St. Bartholomew's, Smithfield; St. Mary's, Camb. Place, Pad.; Lock, Harrow road; St. Luke's, Old street; University, Gower street; Westminster; Broad Sanctuary, Charing Cross, Agar street, Strand, London, Whitechapel road; Royal Free, Gray's Inn road; King's College, Portugal street.

DOCTOR GIBBON has also visited Baron Acton of London, Parker of Birmingham, England, and Ricord of Paris; who are considered the best physicians and surgeons in the world, and whose authority is acknowledged to be the highest in the treatment of Sexual Diseases.

DOCTOR GIBBON has obtained from them their new mode of treatment which cannot be surpassed.

DOCTOR GIBBON has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with new facilities for the alleviation of human suffering.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of vicious indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies—see that they are cured for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of these charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emission, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove to satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Doctor Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use. Fee Ten Dollars, sent in registered letter or through Wells, Fargo & Co.

Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 617 Kearny street, near Commercial, San Francisco. Post Office Box 452. Consultations FREE.

Caution to the Unfortunate.

Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders who, with bogus sheepskin certificates hang in their offices. Some are tinsmiths, shoemakers, [illegible] intelligence office keepers [illegible] Look over the San Francisco Directory and you will not find their Medical Institutes in it. [illegible] The only way to avoid imposition is to make inquiry.
